IMPERIAL ASSAULT

SKIRMISH MAP SHEET

Twin Shadows includes a new skirmish map to expand your options for Imperial Assault skirmishes. The "Mos Eisley Cantina" map (see below) corresponds to the "Drinks and Dealings" and "Battlefield Engineering" Skirmish Mission cards found in this expansion.

For more information on playing a skirmish, players should consult the Skirmish Guide and Rules Reference Guide, both of which are found in the core game.

A Drinks and Dealings

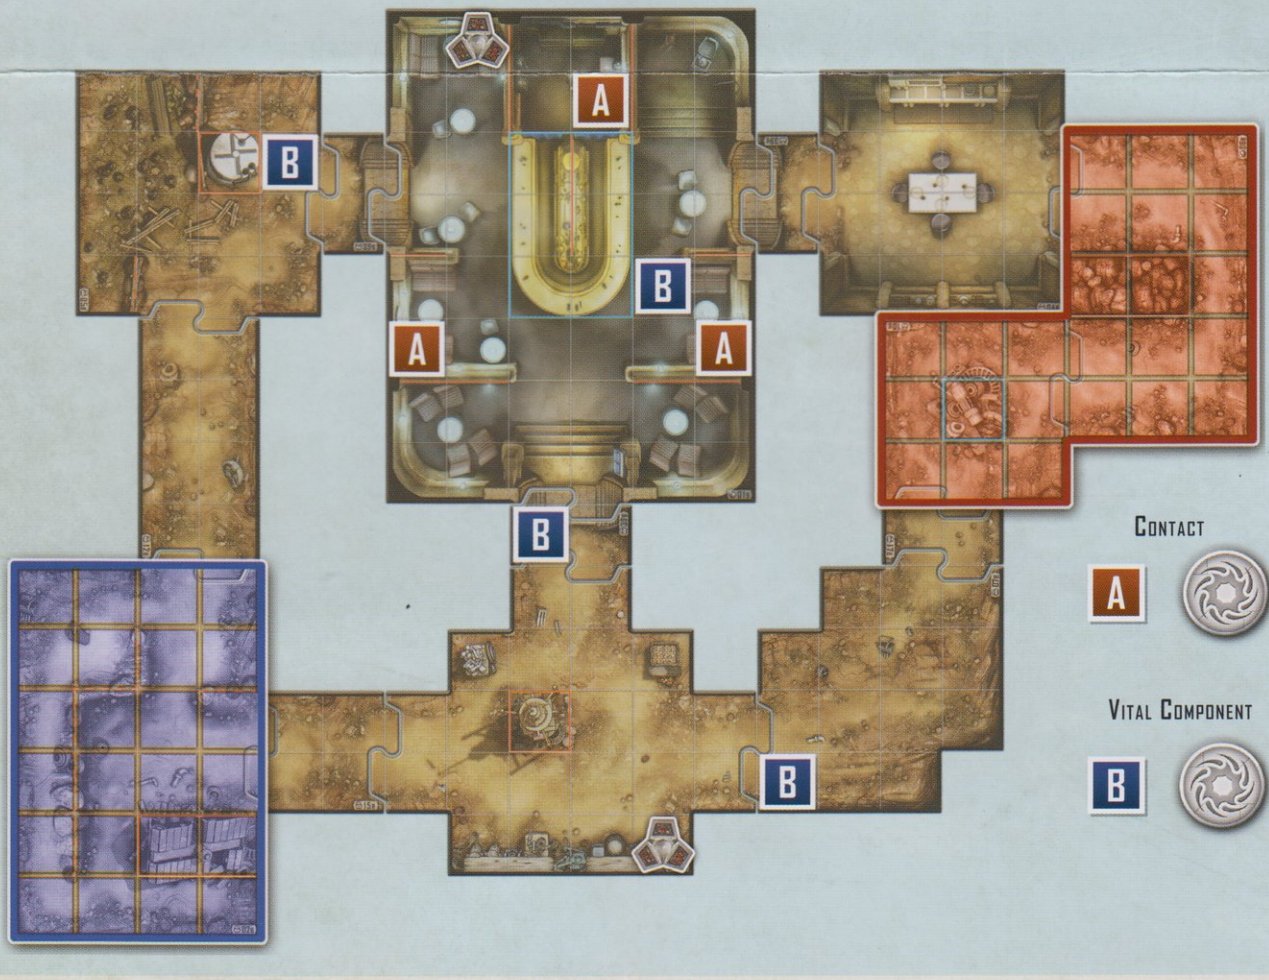

In battle, knowledge can be just as powerful as weaponry and informants can be just as valuable as soldiers. And you can say what you want about the clientele in Mos Eisley cantinas, but they are excellent informants with lots of knowledge to share.

You move toward a favorite local watering hole hoping to make contact with some of your most valued informants to gain new information on your enemy. This is not just a recon mission, however. You suit up for battle, knowing your enemy will be just as interested as you are in some of this information, or at least stopping you from attaining it.

B Battlefield Engineering

Superior technology is essential to any military organization, but sometimes there just isn't the time or resources required test things out in the lab and perfect them. Sometimes soldiers just have to think on the fly.

You had entered Mos Eisley hoping to claim a valuable piece of equipment when you encountered your enemy pursuing the same goal. The resulting firefight blew apart the equipment, but the pieces are still salvageable. You sprint to save what you can and even try to put it to use, while also continuing to engage the enemy squad that's pressing in on your location.
